Maine National Guard Getting Well Settled Down to the Work.

A Sham Battle is Likely to be Fought on Wednesday Morning.

Augusta, Me., Aug. 9. The N. G. S. M. is getting well settled down to the work of the encampment and everything now seems to indicate that it will be the most successful ever held. Many more men joined their companies today and it is a remarkable fact that every field, staff and line officer in both regiments is present for duty.

Lieut Morton, 6th U. S. Infantry, instructor and inspector of the guard, received the news today of his promotion to a captaincy. Major York, commander of the first battalion in the 2nd regiment, was presented with a handsome sabre by the line officers of his battalion. The drills were well executed this afternoon, followed by a dress parade.

The best of order has been maintained and the men are a credit to the State. In the company inspectors' match of the 1st regiment this afternoon the prize was won by Sergt. Paul J. Lidbach, Co. A, Portland. There is no sickness in camp and the men are all contented. There is no kicking on the food this year. Tuesday morning there will be a company team match of the 2d regiment and in the afternoon a match of the company inspectors of the 2nd regiment. A sham battle will quite likely be fought Wednesday morning.

The Stock Market.

New York, Aug. 9. Quite a liquidation set in in the stock market in the last hour and half of trading today and prices came tumbling from their high places, the declines from the high point being in many cases very wide. It looked for a time as though the market was going to pieces under the weight of heavy offerings to realize. But after it was over a taking account of the day revealed that the net changes of importance were confined to a comparitively few stocks.

It was the stocks that had enjoyed sensational advances in the morning, notably the grangers, that suffered most severely in the afternoon. The early advance carried many stocks up over two points, notably Burlington, Rock Island, Chicago, Great Western, Toledo, Colorado Fuel, Lackawanna, Western Union and New Jersey Central, a large number of other active shares showing gains of over a point.

But the slump in the market wiped out all but a small fraction of the advance in nearly all cases and carried some below Saturday's close, Rock Island and Leather preferred each losing 1⅛ net. Some of the notable losses on the day were: Consolidated Gas 3½, Manhattan 3⅝, Laclede Gas 3¼, Brooklyn Transit 2½, Illinois Central 2½ and over a point in Sugar, Spirits pfd, North west, Southern pfd and Leather pfd.

On the other hand net gains reached important proportions in the case of Fort Wayne 3, Pennsylvania 2, New York, Chicago and St. Louis first pfd 3, Lackawanna 2¾, Illinois Steel, Norfolk and Western pfd and Colorado Fuel.

The bond market sympathized with the share speculation in general tendency, but the variations were exceedingly narrow. The transactions were in enormous volume, with the demand very keen for the lower grade liens. The aggregate sales were $4,185,000. Governments were dull but firm, the transactions were $5000.

Emperor William's Visit to Russia.

St. Petersburgh, Aug. 9. Upon the occasion yesterday of the presentation by the municipal authorities of St. Petersburg of bread and salt to the Emperor and Empress of Germany, the chief burgomaster expressed the joy of the inhabitants at the visit of their majesties to Russia, and heartily welcomed them to the capitol.

Emperor William, in reply, thanked the municipality for the kind reception accorded him and the Empress, expressing the great pleasure which he derived at visiting his "august and beloved friend the Czar."

Slices of bread were presented to their majesties on a silver dish and the salt was presented in a silver salt cellar.

Yesterday evening the Emperor and Empress of Germany proceeded to Krasnoe Selo, the great military camp, where they were received by the Czar and Czarina.

After the two Emperors and their staffs had ridden around the camp they proceeded to the Imperial tent, where a deputation of officers and men from the Viborg regiment, of which Emperor William is honorary colonel, were manoeuvred by the Emperor of Germany, who gave the commands in Russian. Later the grand military tattoo was opened with "Sang an Aegir," Emperor William's composition, at the close which there was a discharge of rockets and an imperial salute was fired by the artillery.

Their majesties then proceeded to the Alexander palace, dined in private and afterwards witnessed a performance at the theatre.

The military review at Camp Krasnoe Selo was a grand spectacle, and came off in brilliant weather. The troops under the command of the Grand Duke Vladimir were drawn up in a square, in the center of which was the imperial tent.

The Dowager Czarina, the Czarina and the German Empress were seated in a four horse carriage and after driving along the front of the hollow square took a position directly in front of the tent, from which point they watched a gorgeous and picturesque march past. Emperor Nicholas led the guards in front of Emperor William.

Prevented from Taking New Business.

Boston, Aug. 9. A special to the Herald from Concord, N. H., says: "The Massachusetts Benefit Life Association has been prevented by the commissioners from taking any new business in this state since April 1, 1896. On that date the license of the company was renewed only on condition that the company would do no more new business. The same condition was made in the renewal of the license of 1897. No publicity has been given the facts. In the case up to this time the Commissioner, Linehan did not desire to do anything to increase the agitation against the company.

Free Entry of Baggage.

Washington, Aug. 9. In a circular letter today customs officers are instructed that the privilege of free entry with the waiver of examination of baggage can only be extended to certain high officials under special instructions from the department. Terrible Tortures Inflicted Upon Some of the Captives of the Band.

Constantinople, Aug. 9. An official despatch received here says that on Friday last several thousand Armenian agitators from Persia invaded Turkey.

They killed 200 of the Migrizi tribe, including women and children. The wife of the chief was put to death with the most cruel tortures, and several other victims had their noses and ears cut off.

The authorities have taken measures to capture the marauders, and to provide for eventualities in the vilayet of Van.

THREE FAST CLASSES.

Midsummer Race Meeting at Old Orchard Kite Track.

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 9. The midsummer race meeting at the kite track began this afternoon with three fast classes, two of which were finished and the third carried over till tomorrow.

The 2.10 pace, with six starters, was won in straight heats by Refina; best time 2.08¼, breaking the New England pacing mare record.

The 2.18 trot was won by Bismarck, after Lady Alcy had taken one heat in 2.13¼, the fastest heat in the race.

A dead heat between Dr. Wood and Monopole and a collision on the track, which resulted in the throwing of Driver James Galvin, were sensational features of the 2.12 pace. The judges held George G. responsible for the collision and distanced him after he had won a heat. The summaries:

NEW REGULATIONS

For Mining in the Klondyke—Important Action by Canada.

Toronto, Aug. 9. A special from Ottawa says that the Dominion government has reached several important decisions in regard to the Yukon country and the working of the gold fields there.

It has been decided to appoint an administrator for the district who will have entire charge of all the Canadian officials there and be the chief executive officer of the government. Major Walsh, a former commander of the Northwest Mounted Police, is to be appointed to the position.

The party of mounted police to leave Manitoba next week for the gold country has been increased from 20 to 35. They will take with them two Maxim guns.

The mining regulations have been amended in an important particular. At present a miner is at liberty to stake out a claim of 500 feet running along with the stream and back to the bank. This has been reduced to 100 feet and the new regulation will go into force immediately.

A court for the administration of the civil and criminal justice for the gold districts has also been decided upon. Justice McGuire, of Prince Albert, is to preside over the court.

GENERAL CONSTERNATION.

Terrific Thunder Storm in New Hampshire on Monday.

Farmington, N. H., Aug. 9. The worst electric storm that ever visited this section passed over this town today. The lightning was terrific and the deep darkness caused general consternation. The loss includes 50 tons of hay, a valuable trotting horse, other live stock and nearly all the furniture.

Louis Keith, of Lynn, who arrived on the noon train, lost nearly all his clothing and personal effects, including valuable jewelry. The loss is $10,000; partially insured.

OF UNSOUND MIND.

Crank Collier, Who Threatened Dr. Hale, to Be Placed in Asylum.

Providence, Aug. 9. Wm. A. Collier, the insane divinity student, who threatened to kill Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale, and who was confined in the Washington County jail for an assault on Officer J. T. Northup, has been examined by Drs. Wilcox and Robison, two of Wakefield's physicians, and pronounced to be of unsound mind.

In consequence, the writ charging him with assault has been withdrawn and a new one issued charging insanity. Judge Nathan B. Lucas of the second district court has ordered his commitment to the state asylum for the insane.

Government Armor Plant.

Washington, Aug. 9. The special naval board appointed by Acting Secretary Roosevelt for the purpose of preparing for the information of Congress estimates of the cost of establishing and operating a government plant for the manufacture of armor, met at the Navy Department today. Before proceeding with the work of organization, the members of the board called upon Acting Secretary Roosevelt and had a long talk on the subject with him.

The acting secretary expressed his views as to the intention of Congress. The plan is to make a most thorough investigation of the question presented in all of its aspects.

Inasmuch as the shipbuilders have failed to respond favorably to the government's invitation to submit bids within the $300 mark for supplying armor for the ships now building, Mr. Roosevelt called especial attention of the board to this subject and one of its first duties will be to devise some practical plan for the procurement of this armor for the three battleships Illinois, Alabama and Wisconsin, within a reasonable period of time. Acting Secretary Roosevelt has accepted the offer of the Cramps to furnish the diagonal armor for the Alabama and this ensures that vessel against delay in construction.

Asked to "Stand By."

Boston, Aug. 9. A number of prominent policy holders of the Massachusetts Benefit Life Association in the state, headed by Col. B. S. Lovell, John Haskell Butler, N. F. Ryder and others, issued a statement this evening calling upon the policy holders to stand by the association.

In this lengthy document they support the association, condemn the methods which have been used to weaken the company's standing and earnestly protest against any action of the directors looking towards the appointment of a receiver.

A special meeting of the directors has been called for tomorrow to consider the advisability of asking for the appointment of a receiver. It is anticipated and even stated as a fact that no action will be taken as the directors desire to wait until the time for paying the extra assessment has expired, which will be about Aug. 20th.

Little Trade By Way of Cape Horn.

Washington, Aug. 9. Trade between the Atlantic ports by way of Cape Horn, once the route of very considerable domestic traffic, has dwindled until now it may be said to be entirely a chance trade.

"During the last fiscal year as reported by the bureau of statistics of the Treasury Department, 32 vessels, aggregating 57,094 tons, made the long voyage from the Atlantic to the Pacific ports, mainly from New York to San Francisco, and only ten, aggregating 17,786 tons, from the Pacific to the Atlantic ports. These were not in regular trade, but sailed by way of the Horn either in ballast or, if fortunate, with cargoes of domestic merchandise for the purpose of taking at their first destination other cargoes for export."

Speaker Reed at Bar Harbor.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 9. Hon. Thomas B. Reed, who came on the schooner yacht Sachem, came ashore this afternoon and took the 4.10 train for Portland. He had not heard of the assassination of Senor Canovas, Spain's premier, when he came on shore and while much surprised, he declined to express an opinion.

HUNGER HAS EFFECT.

The Striking Miners Suffering for Want of Food.

Feel Encouraged In Some Districts as New Men Join Their Ranks.

A Great Army of Miners Marched to Wadsworth, O., for Meeting.

Akron, O., Aug. 9. A special to the Beacon Journal from Wadsworth, Ohio, says that during Sunday afternoon and night over 1500 miners on foot, in wagons, carriages and vehicles of all descriptions, carrying banners and flags, had arrived in the place.

A monster meeting was held in the Hinsdale orchard attended by 2000 people this morning.

As a result of the meeting 80 miners from Card & Brett's mine and Loomis No. 3 have joined the strikers.

Hunger Has Effect.

Pittsburg, Aug. 9. Hunger is doing more injury to the cause of the miners than any one thing and the commissary department is doing everything possible to provide against this contingency.

Miners Encouraged.

Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 9. Matters took a turn today in the Wheeling district and the miners are feeling encouraged tonight. This morning an army of miners gathered at the works of the Glendale Company, and induced the working miners to come out to a man. They then went to the Boggs Run mines and the strikers secured their promise to remain out if all the Boggs Run men would make the same promise.

THE YACHT FLEET.

Will Remain at Bar Harbor Until Thursday—Races and Illuminations.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 9. The yachtsmen, without exception, were very enthusiastic over the outcome of the great ocean race Saturday and Sunday and they were not slow in congratulating Commodore Morgan on the success of his plan. It was, therefore, an easy matter for the local committee to induce the yachtsmen to postpone the disbandment of the fleet until Thursday and at a meeting on board the Corsair this afternoon it was so voted.

The extension of the time before the departure of the yachts made a change in the programme and it was decided that the handicap race for the yachts, which was called off this morning, should be sailed tomorrow at the same time, and that the illumination which was being arranged for tonight should go over until tomorrow night. This will bring the gig and cutter races for the Owl and Gamecock colors and the naptha races on Wednesday, with the possibility of still another race on Thursday if the local committee can carry out their plans.

After it had been definitely decided to remain here three days, Commodore Morgan with his usual energy began arranging the details for the numerous contests. He soon decided that the race tomorrow should be a triangular one of 21 miles with the start off the outer Porcupine and the turning marks at Baker Island and Schoodic Point, so that the entire race will be almost within sight of the famous Cliff Walk. The race will be a handicap one.

None of the yachts will know how much they are penalized until after the race is finished. This will necessitate each one sailing to the limit and will no doubt make the contest one of the warmest races seen for a long time.

A prize will be given by the club in both the schooner and sloop classes, and Capt. Percy Chubb of the yacht Vigilant adds $200 to the former prize. The start will be at 11 o'clock and will be witnessed by nearly the entire population of this famous summer resort, which is already filled to overflowing.

At 11 o'clock Wednesday morning the gig and cutter races will be probably rowed.

On Thursday, unless the local club gets up another race, the fleet after 11 days in squadron, will disband, and one of the most successful cruises ever held by the club will come to an end.

There is some discussion over the fact that at the finish of the schooner race yesterday, which resulted in the Colonia winning by 21 seconds, corrected time, the flagship was not anchored; but drifted to some extent, while if she had remained still it might have made some difference in the time. The general impression, however, seems to be to allow the matter to rest.

American Flag Outnumbers Others.

Washington, Aug. 9. Consul General Haywood reports that during 1896 American vessels, numbering 247, of 243,953 tons, entered at Hawaiian ports, while vessels of all other nationalities numbered 139, of 234,014 tons.

These are the only foreign ports where a majority of the carrying trade is now under the American flag.

Grand Circuit Races.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Aug. 9. The opening meeting of the grand circuit races today was quite successful. The three year old trot, purse $1,000, was won by Jack Miller; the 2.23 trot by Pastoral and the 2.20 pace by Silver Chimes.

Fishery Regulations Being Enforced.

St. Johns, N. F., Aug. 9. The British warships are rigorously enforcing the fishery regulations on the French shore and closing lobster factories erected in violation of treaty rights. They have seized the machinery and the appliances.

Much indignation exists among resident fishermen, and strong representations are being made on the subject to colonial government.

Suicide of New York Broker.

New York, Aug. 9. Wm. G. Read, Jr., aged 38 years, member of the New York stock exchange and senior member of the firm of Read, Parsons & Co., stock brokers in the Ellison building, Broad and New streets, committed suicide today by shooting himself in the left temple while in a toilet room on the second floor of the building.

Held for Illegal Porgie Fishing.

Ellsworth, Me., Aug. 9. Captains Daniel Mason of steamer Joseph Church, and R. E. Mason, of steamer Geo. Curtis, were tried this afternoon on the charge of seining porgies illegally in Bluehill bay a few weeks ago. Judge Peters found probable cause for holding them for the October term of the supreme court and bail in $300 each was furnished. Judge F. C. Chase, of Bluehill, was the complainant and prosecuting attorney.

These are companion cases to that of Capt. P. H. Gray, of Sacconnet. On the day in question Capt. Mason is said to have caught about 90 barrels of porgies, but he claimed that none had been taken in unlawful territory.

PEOPLE WROUGHT UP.

Demand Stringent Measures Against the Anarchists.

Likely Assassin Golli Will Be Summarily Tried and Sentenced.

Golli Says He Killed to Avenge—Believed That He Had a Bomb.

Madrid, Aug. 9. Rumor has it that Senor Pidal will only hold office until the liberals come into power, and it is rumored that Senor Sagasta, the liberal leader, will shortly be recalled. It is thought in some quarters that the late premier reposed too much confidence in the chief of the secret police, who accompanied him to Santa Agueda, and who has once been dismissed. It appears that Golli, the assassin, represented himself as a correspondent of El Popolo.

The prisoner cannot be tried until the repeal of the laws providing for the trial and punishment of anarchists, as this law is so framed that a person prosecuted under its provisions must have used or attempted to use explosives in the commission or attempt to commit the crime charged against him.

However, there is no doubt Golli will be summarily tried and sentenced. The public demands the adoption of stringent measures against anarchists and against those who are in sympathy with them.

Golli's Confession.

Madrid, Aug. 9. Golli has confessed that he killed Senor Canovas to avenge the Barcelona anarchists and the insurgent leader, Don Jose Rizal, who was executed at Manila, Philippine Islands, on Dec. 30 last, as the instigator of the Philippine rebellion. Dr. Rizal denied that he was a rebel leader, but he admitted that he had drawn up the statute of the Philippine league.

In Golli's room the police found today a large double barrelled pistol. It appears that when he left the house yesterday he carried a parcel which is believed to have contained a bomb. The theory is that he hid this somewhere in the fields.

A despatch from Barcelona says that Golli arrived there in December of 1895, coming from Marseilles. He was employed in the printing office of the Review Ciencia Social, managed by the anarchist engineer, Tarrida Marmel, formerly imprisoned in Montjuich fortress at Barcelona.

Golli was implicated in the terrible crime of the celebration of Corpus Christi, although he left Barcelona a few days before it occurred.

He was denounced to the police for complicity but he had already disappeared.

Presented Condolences.

London, Aug. 9. The United States ambassador to the court of St. James, Col. Hay, and the United States minister to Spain, Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, called at the Spanish embassy here today and presented their condolences. Gen. Woodford will arrive in Madrid on Aug. 21.

BASE BALL.

Boston and Baltimore Lost, while Cincinnati Split Even with Pittsburg.

Boston, Aug. 9. New York won today because Boston could not hit Meekin, while Van Haltren, Davis and Gleason batted Nichols freely. New York is the first club to get a score of double figures off Nichols this year, and only for Nichols' home run in the fourth inning the Boston score would have been much smaller. Wilson made some brilliant running catches of fouls. Score: New York, 10; Boston, 4. Hits, 13 to 10. Errors, 4 and 2. Batteries, Meekin and Wilson; Nichols and Bergen.

Bully Doyle Did It.

Brooklyn, Aug. 9. Jack Doyle caused the downfall of the Baltimores here today. After the score stood 6 to 0 in favor of his team he fumed and swore at Corbett until the youngster lost his temper in the third inning, threw away the ball and walked to the dressing room. Nops was substituted. After this the champions played like demoralized men. Score: Brooklyn, 10; Baltimore, 9. Hits, 21 to 10. Errors, 3 and 6. Batteries, Dunn and Smith; Corbett, Nops and Clarke.

At Washington — Philadelphia, 2; Washington, 5.

Difficult to Follow.

Many people find it extremely difficult to follow the modern journal. We do not now refer to yellow journalism, which is in a class by itself. But some of the papers that labored early and late to teach the people in the currency discussion, pointing out the evils sure to result from the free coinage of silver and stamping that doctrine as both dangerous and dishonest, immediately take alarm when the trustees of one of our institutions of learning mildly suggest to its President that whatever his personal views might be he should not permit his name to be closely identified with a cause inimical to the welfare of the institution and to the people as a whole. This they say is interference with free speech.

If the contention were true, as it is not, the trustees would be false to their duties if they permitted any such high flown ideas concerning free speech to deter them from action if satisfied that non-action meant lasting injury to the institution which they represent. Suppose the President of one of our colleges should suddenly become convinced that anarchy in its most hideous form was justified by certain conditions, should he be requested to keep his name free from such associations while remaining at the head of said institution? If so it would be as surely be an interference with the freedom of speech. It is necessary to draw the line somewhere and if the free coinage of silver means, as we believe it does, all that these same papers have contended, then a man who holds to that doctrine is out of place at the head of an institution where young men are getting their education on this and kindred subjects. It is time wasted for the papers to seek to educate the people if the very fountain of education is to be [illegible]ated.

Another illustration of the same tendency is to be found in connection with the labor troubles in the mining regions. An injunction has been granted against Debs and other agitators and the modern papers are greatly disturbed lest the judge granting said injunction has gone too far. A Judge of the United States Court ought to be as good a lawyer as the average newspaper editor, to say the least. If, however, the injunction is too sweeping it is a matter easily adjusted at the aim of the Court is to preserve law and order and possibly life itself. The effect of the newspaper controversy is to make a martyr of Debs, a [illegible] who gets a living out of the misfortunes of the laboring class. He is not lacking in brains and therefore is quick to see the point and improve it. The real merits of the disagreement between employers and employed are not involved. It is simply a question whether such men as Debs, who not long since attempted to tie up the railroad systems of the country and landed himself in jail, shall go about inciting riot and bloodshed. The Court says "No" and whether the injunction is as sweeping as has been asserted or not it is in the interest of the people of the commonwealth and the papers that are engaging in captious criticism are playing with fire.

The Age of Wheeling.

The New York Tribune says: Among our modern improvements there are few that would have seemed more marvellous to the people of a generation or two ago than the bicycle. There are few if any that are effecting so important a social revolution. There have been greater inventions, in the applications of steam and electricity. But even they are not as essentially novel in their effects as this. The steamship and railroad and telegraph and electric light are doing what used to be done by the sailing ship and stage coach and mails and lamps. They are doing them far better, no doubt; but they are, after all, nothing but improvements upon those older and simpler things. But there was nothing that ever undertook to do what the bicycle is doing. There has been nothing upon which it is merely an improvement. More than almost anything else in this age it is a new thing, doing a new work, creating new departments of human industry and human pleasure, and bringing into the economy of the social organization a new factor.

If there were any possible doubt that the bicycle has "come to stay," it would be dispelled by such a gathering as that of the League of American Wheelmen at Philadelphia this last week. The spectacle of thousands of men and women from all parts of the continent, meeting as representatives of other scores of thousands, and receiving the applications of thousands more for membership among them, is of impressive significance. These people are not, as the early wheelmen may have seemed and may indeed have regarded themselves, mere enthusiasts cultivating a circumscribed fad. They are earnest, practical folk, considering a wellnigh universal fact. For that is what bicycling has become.

It is no longer the sport or the luxury of the few, but the pleasure or the practical aid of the many. The wheel is used by the clergyman on his parochial missions, by the physician in attending his patients, by the student in going to and from school, by the business man, clerk and artisan in going to and from places of occupation, by the policeman in patrolling his beat, by the postman in making his rounds, by the soldier in the Army, by the explorer on his travels, by the invalid for health, by the athlete for strength, for social pleasure, for communion with nature, and, indeed, by almost every kind and condition of man and for almost every conceivable good purpose.

Two things are chiefly aiding in this wide extension of its use, and will probably continue so to do to a still greater extent. One is the making of good roads, asphalted in the cities and macadamized in the country. These have enormously encouraged the wider use of the wheel, and, conversely, are themselves largely the creation of the wheel. Greatly as they benefit all the people, it is perfectly within bounds to say that their existence is due to the agitation and efforts of wheelmen far more than to any other cause. The other thing that is promoting the wider use of the wheel is the marked reduction in its price, which has brought it within the financial reach of a wellnigh universal constituency. Time was when $150 was the standard price. Then there was a cut to $125; then to $100; then to $75, at which latter figure wheels of some of the best makes are now selling, while others, scarcely distinguishable from them and perhaps just as good, are selling for still less. There will no doubt be yet further reductions. In the early years of bicycle-making improvements were frequently being made, and each year's model was radically different from that of the preceding year. New dies and other machinery had therefore to be made each year, and the cost of manufacturing was great. But the bicycle is now so nearly perfect that few changes are made, the same manufacturing plant will serve year after year, and the price can be much reduced. It is probably within bounds to say that the actual cost of producing a first-class wheel is, or will presently be, less than one-fourth of its market price. The history of the sewing machine, the reaper, and most other mechanical inventions shows just such decrease in cost, and that of the bicycle will form no exception to the rule.

Now all this, as we have said, is effecting a wondrous social revolution. Invalids are getting their health restored as if by magic. People are getting into the open air and seeing the world and appreciating its beauties as never before. There have been, and still are, abuses, no doubt. Some people ride beyond their strength, just as others eat or drink too much or stay in the surf too long. Some still assume the detestable monkey attitude, just as others swagger in their walk or put their feet on the table. Some ride too fast, violate the rules of rules of the road and otherwise make themselves offensive, just as others do in driving, even in walking, and in their general conduct in public places. But such brutalities are gradually being effaced. Perhaps they will never be entirely abolished in wheeling any more than in other departments of human activity, until the millennium. But the wheelman is now about as near the millennium as is the horseman or the pedestrian, and is moving toward it as rapidly. If this is an age of wheeling, as it certainly seems to be, it is also, and partly because of that fact, an age of improved mental and physical health, and of "sweeter manners, purer laws."

The Century IN 1897.

ALL NEW FEATURES.

The Century will continue to be in every respect the leading American magazine, its table of contents including each month the best in literature and art. The present interest in American history makes especially timely A Great Novel of the American Revolution, its leading serial feature for 1897, and the masterpiece of its author, Dr. S. Weir Mitchell. "The story, "Hugh Wynne, Free Quaker," purports to be the autobiography of its hero, an officer on Washington's staff. Social life in Philadelphia at the time of the Revolution is most interestingly depicted, and the characters include Washington, Franklin, Lafayette, and others well known in history. It is safe to say that the readers of this great romance will obtain from it a clearer idea of the people who were foremost in Revolutionary days, and of the social life of the times, than can be had from any other single source. The work is not only historically accurate, but is a most interesting story of love and war. The first chapters are in the November number. Howard Pyle will illustrate it.

Campaigning With Grant, by General Horace Porter, is the title of a series of articles which has been in preparation for many years. General Porter was an aide on General Grant's staff and a close friend of his chief, and the diary, which he kept through the war is the basis of the present articles, which are striking pen-pictures of campaign life and scenes. They will be fully illustrated. The first one is in the November Century.

A new novel by Marion Crawford, author of "Mr. Isaacs," "Saracinesca," "Casa Braccio," etc., entitled, "A Rose of Yesterday," a story of modern life in Europe with American characters, begins in November. The first of a series of engravings, made by the famous wood-engraver, T. Cole, of the old English masters also in this issue. New features will be announced from time to time.

ASSASSINATION OF CANOVAS.

Details of the Crime and How It Was Received.

The Murder Undoubtedly Premeditated by the Anarchists.

Madrid, Aug. 9.—The assassination of the prime minister of Spain, Senor Canovas del Castillo, who was shot and killed by the Italian anarchist whose name is believed to be Michele Angino Golli, at the baths of Santa Agueda yesterday afternoon, was undoubtedly premeditated.

Golli deliberately watched for an opportunity to kill the Spanish statesman and he only fired when he had no chance of missing. In fact, the assassin, who was arrested almost immediately after the premier fell dying at the feet of his wife, has declared as much to the examining magistrate. The prime minister lingered for some time in agony and passed away with a cry of "Long live Spain."

Further details of the assassination show that Senor Canovas del Castillo and his wife were present yesterday at the celebration of mass in the chapel attached to the baths. After mass the premier was reading and conversing with some reporters when the assassin approached and fired three shots at him with a revolver, hitting him in the forehead, chest and left ear. The wounded man fell to the ground crying "Assassin, long live Spain."

The premier was carried to his room and expired at 1.30 in the afternoon after extreme unction had been administered to him by a priest of the Dominican order.

The murderer was immediately seized by people who were in the vicinity of the scene of the crime, was severely handled and might have been killed had it not been for the protection afforded him by a number of civil guards, who soon ran to the scene of the assassination.

The prisoner, who declared that he had killed the premier "in the accomplishment of a just vengeance," at first gave the name of Rinaldi and claimed that the deed was the outcome of an extensive anarchist conspiracy. Later, however, the assassin confessed that his real name was Michele Angine Golli, that he was 26 years of age, a native of Boggia, near Naples, and that he left Italy and came to Spain in 1896. After reaching Spain, Golli, according to his confession, resided at Barcelona and participated in the doings of the various anarchist associations of that place and vicinity. After sojourning at Barcelona for some time, Golli visited France and Belgium and returned to Spain in July last.

After his return, the anarchist seems to have completed the plans for the assassination of the prime minister. He left Madrid for Santa Agueda at the same time as Senor Canovas del Castillo and awaited an opportunity to assassinate the statesman.

Appearance of the Assassin.

In appearance Golli is of medium height, wears a full beard and spectacles and his demeanor is that of a quiet law-abiding citizen. He says he is satisfied with having done "his duty" and asserts that he had no personal grudge against the premier and was merely obeying orders received from his superiors of the society to which he belonged. He frankly professes anarchist doctrines, says he was sentenced in 1895 to 18 months' imprisonment in the jail at Lucera, Italy, and claims that he escaped from there to Marseilles, from which port he made his way to Barcelona.

Senora Canovas del Castillo, wife of the premier, who was but a short distance away from her husband when the crime was committed, rushed to his side upon hearing the shots and seeing the premier dying on the ground, she bitterly reproached the murderer for his crime. Golli in reply to the agonizing words of the distracted wife said:

"I respect you because you are an honorable lady. But, I have done my duty and I am now easy in my mind, for I have avenged my friends and brothers of Mont Juich."

Mont Juich is the fortress of Barcelona outside of which the anarchists who have been sentenced to death for recent outrages have been executed. The anarchists recently executed outside Mont Juich were the last batch of the friends who were guilty of throwing a bomb on June 7, 1896, into a religious procession about to enter the church of Santa Maria de La Mar, upon the occasion of the Corpus Christi celebration. Twelve persons were instantly killed. For this crime 26 anarchists were sentenced to death and the majority of them were executed. The condemned men invariably shouted "Long live anarchy," just before the orders to fire were given.

Newspapers Express Great Indignation.

The Spanish newspapers express great indignation at Golli's crime. Even the periodicals which have republican leanings praise the services of the deceased statesman. The Imparcial says:

"Yesterday will prove a black date for Spain. The crime will centuple the indignation of society against its would-be destroyer."

Many of the newspapers this morning appear with black borders around their type. A post mortem examination of the remains of the premier was made this morning prior to embalming them for transportation to this city. The funeral will be most imposing. The indignation expressed at the crime is shared by all parties in politics and it is generally believed that the members of the Colonial Secret Secretaries were concerned in the outrage.

It is reported that Senor A. Pidal, president of the chamber of deputies, will be appointed president of the council of ministers, in succession to the late premier, at the expiration of the official nine days mourning. The ministers for the present will meet in council daily.

Golli, it developed at the examination before a magistrate today, succeeded in firing two shots at the people who arrested him before he was overpowered. The assassin calls himself a "revolutionary anarchist."

Senor Silvela, the leader of the Conservatives has followed the example of Senor Sagasta, the Liberal leader. Marshal Martinez de Campos has tendered his condolences to the government, while placing his services at the disposal of the ministers.

The cabinet sat until 2 o'clock this morning and decided to publish in the Official Gazette today, which will appear with a black border, the appointment of Lieutenant General Don Marcelo de Azcarraga, the minister of war, as premier ad interim.

Senor Sagasta has postponed his projected visit to this city.

In anticipation of possible disturbances at Barcelona, the police force of that city has been reinforced.

Later in the day it was announced that the highest military honors would be accorded the deceased at his funeral.

The court, however, will not return here from San Sebastian, the summer residence, to attend the funeral ceremonies. The queen regent, however, will be represented at the funeral by the Duke of Sotomayor, the chief major domo.

The remains will be brought here on Tuesday.

An individual who was heard express sympathy with the assassin of the premier and with his crime has been arrested.

The newspapers of this city, in commenting upon the crime says that though anarchists have no country it is dreadful to contemplate that the last two murders of eminent men, that of President Carnot of France and the assassination of Premier Canovas del Castillo, were the work of Italians.

A Feeling of Horror in Rome.

Rome, Aug. 9.—The assassination of the Prime Minister of Spain, Senor Canovas del Castillo has caused a feeling of horror here. Many flags are at half mast and the premier, the Marquis di Rudini and the cabinet ministers paid personal visits to day to the Spanish embassy.

King Humbert telegraphed his condolences to the queen regent and it is expected that the Crown Prince Vittorio Emanuele, Prince of Naples, who is now cruising on his yacht, will proceed to Madrid.

The pope was greatly upset by the news of the assassination and on receipt of it immediately sent to the Spanish embassy for details of the crime. His Holiness also telegraphed on the subject to Madrid.

Known at Barcelona.

Barcelona, Aug. 9.—Golli, the assassin of Senor Canovas del Castillo was known here under the name of Achilloli. He formerly worked as a compositor and was also known under the alias of Jose Santo. He was classed as a militant anarchist and was an intimate friend of Ascheri, the perpetrator of the outrage in the Calle de Cambros. Golli fled from Barcelona after the outrage referred to.

Comments of London Papers.

London, Aug. 9.—The afternoon papers in their comments upon the assassination of the Spanish prime minister, express themselves on the same lines as the morning papers, remarking upon the incomprehensible idiocy of the murder of the man who was mainly responsible for giving universal suffrage to Spain.

They also advocate the suppression of anarchism by force, pointing out the history of nihilism in Russia proves that force consistently and [illegible] applied is the remedy for clearing out the pestilent gang. The St. James Gazette regards the death of Senor Canovas del Castillo as being a heavy disaster for Spain.

Predicted by Fortune Teller.

Malaga, Aug. 9.—Old inhabitants of this city relate that when Canovas del Castillo was a young assistant [illegible] at a school here a gypsy woman told his fortune. She predicted that he would become great and would [illegible] with a violent death.

Effect on the Market.

London, Aug. 9.—On the stock exchange here today Spanish [illegible] one-half point on the news of the assassination of Senor Canovas del Castillo.

At Junta Headquarters.

New York, Aug. 9.—At the headquarters of the Cuban Junta this [illegible] President T. Estrada Palma talked [illegible]ly about the assassination of Spanish Prime Minister Canovas. He said that in his opinion Canovas was [illegible] sponsible for the outrages in Cuba [illegible] was Weyler. The Cubans do not believe in murder, but the killing of [illegible] was seemed to be an act of [illegible]. At the same time the Cuban [illegible] had nothing whatever to do with the death of Canovas and had no [illegible] that such an act was even [illegible] by anarchists or any else.

Two Murders Decided Upon.

London, Aug. 9.—A special [illegible] from Madrid received here [illegible] the Spanish government [illegible] a meeting of anarchists was [illegible] in July and that it was decided to [illegible] Senor Canovas del Castillo [illegible] 15 and to assassinate Senor [illegible] before Aug. 30.

Mr. Cleveland Expresses Regret.

Buzzard's Bay, Mass., Aug. 9.—Ex-President Cleveland learned of the assassination of Senor Canovas del Castillo at Gray Gables this morning. [illegible] a query, Mr. Cleveland said [illegible] much deplore the shocking [illegible] eminent statesman who has [illegible] tim to anarchistic rage. The [illegible] civilization may well contemplate [illegible] rible event with gloomy [illegible].

Former Secretary of the Treasury [illegible] who is visiting Hon. Charles Hamlin, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland today. Mr. Carlisle [illegible] the deepest regret at the sad [illegible] ble death of the Spanish premier.

Discussion of Probable Effect in Spain.

Paris, Aug. 9.—The French papers say they do not anticipate [illegible] ical complication in Spain as [illegible] of the assassination of the Spanish [illegible] ler and they do not think the [illegible] tive government will be disturbed.

Senor Betances, a representative of the Cuban insurgents, in an interview [illegible] subject just printed here, expressed the opinion that the political [illegible] Spain will become critical and [illegible] the advantage of the Cubans.

That the agitation against Canovas del Castillo was [illegible] further evidenced by the [illegible] police of this city recently [illegible] from the lavatories of Paris [illegible] scribed "Down with Canovas," the [illegible] tyrs will be avenged, long live [illegible] and other expressions against [illegible] the queen regent and the premier.

In addition the officials of the Spanish embassy here have recently received many threatening letters.

It is stated that at a recent meeting of Spanish refugees at [illegible] of the department of [illegible] speakers declared that the [illegible] would soon be avenged and the Senor Canovas would soon pay [illegible] them with his blood.

The Matin today publishes interviews between its reporters and [illegible] Spanish anarchists, in which [illegible] are quoted as declaring [illegible] previous knowledge of the [illegible] has just startled the world.

The police are watching [illegible] resorts and three arrests have been made. Other arrests are [illegible] follow.

The minister of foreign affairs, M. Hanotaux, has telegraphed the condolences of the French government to the queen regent and to the government of Spain, expressing the indignation felt in France at the crime just committed, and referring to the sympathy in the matter of the French people [illegible]. All the French newspapers [illegible] crime.

BODY BADLY MUTILATED.

Italian Killed by Explosion of Fireworks.

New Haven, Ct., Aug. 9.—A set piece of fireworks, in process of making at Savin Rock, exploded at about 11 o'clock this morning instantly killing one man, an Italian, and seriously injuring another, who was about 500 feet distant from the scene. The dead man is Gi[illegible] lipa Pelalo, aged 35 years, unmarried.

Pelalo lived with his father in a little shanty on the Savin Rock bal[l] grounds, where they manufactured on a small scale pieces of fireworks which are used in the nightly illuminations at this resort. He went to work as usual this morning and began to prepare a set piece known as a "Flower pot." He had filled the receptacle with powder and was bending over his work when all of a sudden the whole thing blew to pieces and the unfortunate man was hurled some feet. His body was badly mutilated and was picked up he was dead.

In the inclosure perhaps 500 feet away Clifford Hunting and others were playing ball. A piece of flying iron struck Hunting on the leg, inflicting an ugly wound.

Fatal Outcome of a Quarrel.

Custer, S. D., Aug. 9.—At a wood camp three miles from here, George Jackson shot and killed John Metcalf as the outcome of a quarrel over a [illegible] comb and brush. The tragedy caused much excitement and some talk of lynching, but Jackson was brought to Custer and lodged in jail.

The mystery of womanhood is full of deep unanswerable enigmas. Why should women be compelled to suffer simply because they are women? Why is it that the source of their highest joys is at the same time the cause of their greatest wretchedness? The very attributes which make it possible for women to be happy wives and mothers also render them liable to the utmost physical misery and pain.

The sufferings of body and mind caused by some weakness of the distinctly feminine organs are so almost universal among women that the question might well be asked: "Is this Nature's punishment for the crime of being a woman?"

The true answer is No! These sufferings are neither natural nor necessary. They would not exist if the organism was healthy. No woman ought to endure such troubles. There is no need of it. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a perfect and positive cure for feminine weakness and disease.

It gives health and strength to the special organs and nerve-centres; heals inflammation; stops weakening drains; promotes functional regularity, and restores the normal, vigorous and painless condition which Nature intended.

It is the only medicine of its kind invented by an educated and experienced physician. It is the only medicine which makes baby's coming safe and comparatively painless.

Any woman who would like to know more about this medicine and about her own physical make-up should send 21 one-cent stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., to pay the cost of mailing only on an absolutely free copy of his thousand-page illustrated book, "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser;" or, 31 stamps for cloth covered.

A sure and permanent cure for constipation is Dr. Pierce's Pellets. One "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, two a mild cathartic.

According to the story Carlisle went into the store and bought the goods, amounting to 76 cents, of a child who was the only one there at the time. He tendered a dollar bill in payment and the child started after its mother to get her to make the change, and while left alone Carlisle departed. He was fined $5 and costs by the court and at first appealed, but finally decided to settle and did so.

ALL OVER THE STATE.

A most respectable Auburn deacon the other day sought recreation in his canoe, the seat of which had recently been painted a vivid red. The day was hot, the deacon, unaccustomed to such toil, perspired freely. On getting back to the wharf it was with difficulty he and the canoe parted company, and where his Sunday trousers had come in contact with the effulgent paint there was a sunset effect as artistic as any known to the impressionist cult. All present declared it charming and were intensely delighted. But the good deacon thought only of his Sunday trousers, and was not at peace with the world until, laying himself prostrate on a couch he had enlisted the services of his good wife armed with a case knife and a bottle of benzine.

An escaped black bear has been creating quite a stir in Fairfield. He developed a great fondness for green beans and they proved a snare to his feet for he dallied too long and was discovered by his pursuers among them. He was no easy capture, however, and bristled with fight. From the beans he went under the car barn and stored himself away in a dark corner for the winter but was prodded out with a pole and came forth like a raging lion. He was cornered here and restored to his old quarters, and ladies and children are again at peace.

Ex-Sheriff C. R. McFadden died at 12 o'clock Saturday night at his home on Center street, Waterville, after an illness from a period of five years. Mr. McFadden was a native of Vassalboro but for the greater part was a resident of Waterville. He was at one time possessed of a fortune of $100,000, but through his generosity toward those who claimed his friendship he endorsed notes; that came back to him and which he paid, resulting in the sweeping away of his fortune and at the age of 50 years he began life anew. His wife and son, Andrew L. McFadden, the present sheriff of Kennebec county, and daughter, Miss Alice McFadden, were at his bedside when death came. Charles Russell McFadden was born in 1820 and consequently was 77 years old at the time of his death. He was a man of strong physical force and was well known throughout the country. He was postmaster under President Lincoln and in fact served in that capacity from 1862 until the administration of President Hayes in 1870. He was for many years treasurer and collector of Waterville and the town never had a better one. He was a deputy sheriff of the county from 1884 to 1888. He was a man of the strictest integrity and large business capacity.

One Augusta dweller on the shores of Lake Cobbosseecontee contemplates starting a skunk farm there. Already four skunks have filed petitions for admission and are fattening off the contents of the swill bucket in the rear of the cottage, much to the disgust of the family out which regards them as interlopers.

Hon. Samuel C. Darling, the president of the Boyd & Corey Shoe Company, that will operate the new shoe factory in Augusta, speaks of special reasons he has in feeling interest in Augusta from his early associations there. His mother's mother was the wife of The [illegible] Hamlin, a well-known resident of that city. His mother was married in the old home, and its associations have been kept well alive in the family. Mr. Darling is a Yale man. He is a lawyer by profession and has been in the Massachusetts Senate and also in the House. Mr. W. H. Aldrich, who is more closely connected with the business of the concern—that is, the selling of the stock, etc.—is a business man of very wide experience. Both are most sociable people, and on better acquaintance will no doubt be as popular themselves as the shoe factory promises to be profitable.

THE BIG STRIKE.

The Wages of the Striking Miners Held Back.

Company Will Insist on Forfeit Clause in Contract with Men.

Pittsburg, Aug. 9.—All the miners of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal Co., who are still at work, were paid today, but those who struck did not receive any money, the company insisting upon the terms of the contract by which the men agreed to forfeit all money due them in case they refused to work. All the miners who can give a reasonable excuse for attending any of the meetings will be paid.

The company has the names of all the men who have been at those meetings and took part in any demonstrations. Unless they can give a satisfactory explanation, that will get no money. The strikers say the men have promised to quit work as soon as they get their pay, but Supt. Samuel De Armitt says the strikers will not take a man out of Plum Creek mines except 20, who will be discharged.

Owing to the carelessness of the guard about the Sandy Creek mine, forty men went into the mine at five o'clock this morning and are now at work. Last week there were but three men at work.

Some of the details for the march on the mines in Westmoreland county and Central Pennsylvania have been arranged. It will probably be made Tuesday but no later than Wednesday. It is expected to take a small army of men from the Pittsburg district and march to the mines that are open. Several brass bands have been engaged and it is hoped to make a successful campaign.

Another Strike May Follow.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 9.—On the success or failure of the bituminous coal miners' strike depends the inception of a movement by the anthracite miners for higher wages and better conditions. District President Patrick Dolan, and the other officials of the United Mine Workers' organization, have received several letters within the past few days, from different parts of the Pennsylvania anthracite coal region, asking for information on the outlook for the big strike, and wanting to know what assurances of victory they have.

If the bituminous miners win, the anthracite diggers think they would have an equal chance of securing an advance in wages. If the present strike is lost, the attempt for an advance will not be made in the anthracite region. The anthracite miners are poorly organized.

Situation Changed for the Worse.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 9.—A special to the Republic from Hillsboro, Ills., says: The situation at Coffeen mine is changed for the worse. Strikers have arrived there from different points, until 800 men are there, and 1,000 will be present today.

A number of arrests of strikers have been made. The prisoners were brought here for trial. One striker from Mount Olive was bound over to keep the peace and in default of bond was sent to jail here. This has tended to incite the strikers. A number of small fights and difficulties have occurred.

"Gen." Bradley is on the ground and says that every miner in the district has been ordered to Coffeen to prevent work. Sheriff Randolph in anticipation of trouble has sent out to other towns for additional deputies. Every striker is armed with a short stick or club and in addition those arrested have been found to be armed with a revolver.

Trouble Expected in Michigan.

Ishpeming, Mich., Aug. 9.—From present indications there is likely to be trouble among the miners of Ishpeming and Negaunee. Secretary Wasley says that about 75 per cent of workmen in Ishpeming and Negaunee were union members and could easily force out the non-union men. Many of the latter have refused to join the union and in consequence the members had decided not to work with them after August 23, when trouble is feared.

THE NORTH ADAMS MURDER.

Two Men Seen Hurrying Away from Vicinity.

North Adams, Aug. 9.—The story told by Mrs. David Fairfield, a neighbor of Henry F. Reed and his sister who were murdered here Saturday, to the effect that she saw two men leave the vicinity early Saturday morning, one in a team, the other on foot, was, it is thought corroborated today by Charles Leonard, driver of an ice cart, who lives on the outskirts of the city and who states that at 3 o'clock on the morning of the murder, two men passed his house, driving at a furious pace.

He thought they were after a doctor or on some such pressing errand and having taken no particular note of the affair at the time, he cannot accurately describe the team, while in the darkness, it was impossible to distinguish more than the forms of the two men.

Sardine Packers Return to Work

Machias, Me., Aug. 9.—The packers in the factories of the Buck's Harbor and Indian Cove sardine factories, who struck a few days ago, after asking for an advance of two cents on a case, have returned to work at the old price. The proprietors of the factories had no difficulty in filling all vacancies left by the outgoing help with men and boys, but as the strikers were mostly female, which is more desirable, the company was willing to take them back when they announced a wish to return.

To Make Public Library.

Ellsworth, Aug. 9.—Contractors here have under consideration, at the present time plans for the remodelling of the Tisdale House into a public library building, to be presented to the city by George Nixon Black, of Boston. The building is centrally located, and the plan to change it into a library is very favorably received by the citizens, who express great appreciation of Mr. Black's generosity.

Attempt to Shoot a Man in Jail.

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 9.—A special to the Commercial Tribune from Barboursville, Ky., says: An attempt was made last midnight by Joseph McKinley to shoot Thomas Dugan in jail. Dugan is on trial for murder of John S. Colson, brother of Congressman Colson. McKinley was killed by the little son of the murdered man and his purpose was frustrated by a deputy sheriff barely in time to prevent its execution.

Caught Trying to Burn a Store.

Lewiston, Aug. 9.—Two boys aged five were caught trying to set fire to a store in a thickly settled portion of Auburn this forenoon. When asked what they were going to do the boy with the matches said they were going to burn the store. One of the boys was concerned in starting the big fire in Auburn Saturday, a few rods distant. When discovered Monday the little rogues had gathered a pile of shavings, boxes, paper, etc., and were about touching it off.

Jenkins Held for Grand Jury.

Lewiston, Aug. 9.—James Jenkins was arraigned in the Lewiston police court Monday morning for assault upon his wife, Saturday, with intent to kill. He pleaded not guilty and was bound over to the grand jury in $5,000. It is feared that Mrs. Jenkins, who was shot in the arm by three bullets, will lose her arm.

British Steamer Towed In.

Sydney, C. B., Aug. 9.—The British steamer Glenisla, Capt. Petrie, from Baltimore, July 23, for Bordeaux, was towed in here this morning with her tailshaft broken, by the German steamer Dalmatia, Capt. Classen, from Baltimore, July 30, for Hamburg.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

PLACER MINING.

The Washing of "Pay Dirt" for Nuggets and Grains of Gold.

To give a homely, but reasonably truthful illustration of placer mining, take a bushel of coarse sand mixed with gravel; a bushel of earth, such as you see taken from an excavation in Chicago; a considerable proportion of clay, a little cement, a double handful of shot, varying in size from the smallest birdshot to the end of your little finger, and imagine all this stuff to be mixed thoroughly together about the consistency of the soil on the shore of Lake Michigan, where the surf beats it into some sort of compactness. How would you go at it to extract the shot in the least possible time and at the least expenditure of labor? If you had heard of placer mining you would wash the dirt away and save the shot, says the Chicago Times-Herald.

All you need is a pan and plenty of water. Any sort of a flat vessel from a soup plate to a dish pan, will answer the purpose. The miner's pan is shaped like a cake pan, with a flat bottom. When a prospector starts out he takes one made of copper. Either with your hands or a pick or a shovel a quart of this mixture just described and put it in the pan. Fill the pan nearly full of water. The earth will be softened into mud. Add more water. Then tilt your pan a very little and the soft mud will run out over the top of the pan. Continue the operation, and in ten or fifteen minutes the earth has run off, and all that you have left in the pan is the shot, which, being heavier than the dirt has sunk to the bottom, together with any gravel which you may have thrown in originally. The work of separating the shot from the gravel after the earth has been washed away is very easy.

Substitute particles of gold for your leaden globules, and the wildest kind of a mountain country, for Chicago, and you know what the men in the Klondyke region have been doing all winter, that has electrified the world. In the manner above described they have been washing the precious metal from earth found in a very rough, broken region larger than the city limits of Chicago. The miners have had no other appliances but the pan and the water of the creeks flowing through the Klondyke district. What makes the authentic reports from Alaska so startling is the extraordinary yield of gold to the pan. Nothing like it or nearly approaching it has ever been heard of before. In the creek beds they have picked up chunks of solid gold as large as your hand, single nuggets worth $1,000 or more. Of course, these are exceptional, even in the new Eldorado.

In the language of miners the earth from which gold is extracted is called "dirt." Any earth which yields 10 cents of gold to the pan is known as "pay dirt"; 15 cents to the pan is good, and 20 cents is rich. A miner working in dirt that runs 6 to 10 cents to the pan earns from $2.50 to $3.50 a day, as he is able to wash about forty panfuls a day, the number depending on the character of the dirt. In Klondyke the lowest yield reported to the pan is 30 cents. This would give the miner not less than $10 a day for his work. Some panfuls yield $100 in precious metal. The gold that remains in the pan after the earth has been washed away is called "dust." Some of it is as fine as the finest sand; some the size of a pinhead, and some as large as a pea, or the end of your little finger, but it is known as dust. Lumps the size of a hazel nut, a walnut and larger are called nuggets.

The gold itself is the measure of the day's or the month's or the season's profit. An ounce of it is worth, barring fractions, $20 any place in civilization. You can buy as much of anything for an ounce of dust as you can for a $20 gold piece. All stores in mining districts are provided with gold scales, and the miner's gold is accepted as so much coin of the realm. The quantity of gold it takes to make a dollar is surprising to one not accustomed to handling the metal. So much dust as you can hold on the largest blade of your penknife is worth $5 to $7.50. When you consider that this small quantity is the yield of thirty or forty pans, you can imagine how little bulk there is to the gold saved. In one pan. A coined gold dollar is smaller than a silver dime. Now, if a miner can save in one panful of dirt the tenth part of a gold dollar he is making fair wages.

Some of the gold is in such fine particles that it floats, and does not sink to the bottom like a shot. A considerable portion of such floating gold runs over the top of the pan and is lost. It is estimated that in the first placer mining in California about one-fourth of the gold was thus lost. To this day Chinamen are engaged in panning the refuse dirt of early miners, and they make from $1.25 to $3 a day in the operation. In Klondyke where so much of the gold is coarse, the miners lose little of the precious metal by reason of its floating away. Placer mining is the simplest of all processes for getting gold out of the ground, and can be carried on only where there is an ample supply of water. All reports from Klondyke agree that the best "diggins" are in the beds of creeks, and that the further down they get the richer the dirt, until bedrock is reached.

Training For Klondyke.

In the Klondyke country the argonaut from this climate will have to be specially equipped physically to stand the rigors of an Arctic winter and the hardship of possible hunger. A course of training may be necessary for the astute young man who has never seen further northwest than Logan Square, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean.

For those who contemplate making the trip to round up all the gold dust that lies concealed under the Arctic Circle, a man versed in bygone suggests the following rules of conduct:

Ride on the front seat of the grip car in winter.

Eschew overcoats and underclothing. Spend two hours a day in the "zero" room of a cold-storage warehouse.

Keep your head cool.

If you play cards at all confine yourself to freeze out.

If married, ask your wife to let you build the fires on January mornings.

If single, send your sweetheart a cook book and call on her the next evening. Your reception will be of a temperature low enough to inure you to most any climate.

Give your friends a cold stare when they greet you.

As you will have to pack your grub from Juneau to Dawson, you will need some muscle. Ask the janitor of your building to call on you, who wants coal carried up to the top floor.

Bathe in water in which ice is floating. It calms the nerves.

Rock the baby to sleep each night in the cradle. The exercise will accustom you to the work you expect to do in your [illegible].

Partake sparingly of the following menu once every other day:

Cutlets of dog. Snowflake muffins. More ice. Tallow a la mode. Hard frappe. Some more ice. Frosted pine cones. Fricassee of icicle. Chipped icebergs. Sperm candle chilled. Cracker pudding.

After a month of this diet two more months should be spent in fasting. If, at the end of that time, you still yearn for sudden wealth you will be in a condition to go, barring, of course, accidents and sickness.

The people of Skowhegan were pained to learn Saturday evening that G. S. Hill, the liveryman, had fallen dead at his stable on Water street. It seems that about 3 o'clock in the evening, he was assisting in harnessing a horse, as was his custom, when he was taken suddenly ill and expired within a few moments. The deceased had complained for several days past of a severe pain in his chest, but this had practically disappeared and the last and fatal attack was pronounced heart disease. The deceased was born in Skowhegan and had always resided there. When a young man he engaged in the livery business and has been occupied in that vocation for the past 40 years. He was one of the town's enterprising citizens and held the highest respect of all. His name was always connected with only that which betokens the highest business integrity and honor. His wife and one son, Percy, who is now in the jewelry business at Brunswick, survive him. The deceased also had a sister, Mrs. Frank Pratt, of Skowhegan, and a brother in Waterville. The funeral services will be held Tuesday.

Kennebec Journal: O well, Maine isn't so hot, after all. Parties who have ascended Mt. Katahdin thus far this season say that up to August 1, a large bank of snow was still noticeably in a ravine near the summit.

WHEN I HAVE TIME.

When I have time, so many things I'll do
To make life happier and more fair
For those whose lives are crowded now with care;
I'll help to lift them from their low despair,
When I have time.

When I have time, the friend I love so well
Shall know no more these weary, toiling days;
I'll lead her feet in pleasant paths always,
And cheer her heart with words of sweetest praise,
When I have time.

When you have time! The friend you hold so dear
May be beyond the reach of your intent,
May never know that you so kindly meant
To fill her life with such sweet content,
When you had time.

Now is the time. Ah, friend, no longer wait
To scatter loving smiles and words of cheer
To those around whose lives are now so drear;
They may not meet you in the coming year—
When you have time.

THE CUMFOO DANCE.

One of the Popular Pastimes of the Negroes in Demerara.

The negro has undoubtedly a very strong inclination to sleep in the day and to spend the night in gossip, dancing or singing. On this account he is often a nuisance to his neighbors, especially when he has a wake. As his home is often nothing more than a single room about eight feet square, the funeral party is conducted in the open yard. Here congregate 50 to 100 people, who begin the entertainment with hymns, going on after midnight to songs and games and often winding up toward morning with a free fight. Then there is the cumfoo dance, one of the finest institutions in the world for producing nightmare. Two men beat drums with the hands, the one instrument producing a tumtum and the other a rattle rattle, almost without intermission during the whole night. At intervals of about a minute the party utters a weird cry in some African language which startles you as you lie in bed vainly trying to sleep. As hour after hour passes your house appears to vibrate, the bed shakes and your spine feels as if made up of loose segments. How can the drummers keep this up for ten hours? And the dancers? With the latter exhaustion alternates with the renewal of the orgy; one set falls down and another takes its place. This and other dances are connected with obeah, the witch cult of the African.

Every negro and most of the colored people have an innate fear of the Obeah man, however they may deny it to the whites. One of the latest developments of this superstition was brought to my notice a short time ago in connection with a cricket match. The East Coast Invincibles and the Admirable Creolians were to play a match, and from a few words dropped by the captain of the latter it appears that he was sure of victory to his side because a notable obeah man had oiled their bat.—Saturday Review.

A Mother's Argument.

"The most to be regretted act of my life," says a lieutenant commander of the navy, "was a letter I wrote to my mother when about 17 years of age. She always addressed her letters to me as 'my dear boy.' I felt at that time I was a man, or very near it, and wrote saying that her constant addressing me as a 'boy' made me feel displeased. I received in reply a letter full of reproaches and tears. Among other things she said: 'You might grow to be as big as Goliath, as strong as Samson, and as wise as Solomon; you might become ruler of a nation, or emperor of many nations, and the world might revere you and fear you, but to your devoted mother you would always appear, in memory, in your innocent, unpretentious, unself conceited, unpampered babyhood. In those days when I washed and dressed and kissed and worshiped you, you were my idol. Nowadays you are becoming part of a gross world by contact with it, and I cannot bow down to you and worship you, but if there are manhood and maternal love transmitted to you, you will understand that the highest compliment that mother love can pay you is to call you "my dear boy."'"

Sicilian Love Charms.

The love charms of Sicily are many and curious. One, very popular and considered very powerful, is to put into an eggshell a few drops of the blood of the longing lover. The shell is exposed to the sun for three days and to the dew for three nights. It is then placed on hot ashes until calcined, when the whole is reduced to a fine powder and administered secretly in a cup of coffee or a glass of wine to the object of affection. Another charm is for the witch to undress at midnight and tie her clothes up in a bundle which she places on her head. Then, kneeling in the center of her room, she pronounces an incantation, at the end of which she shakes her head. If the bundle falls in front of her, it is a good sign; should it fall behind her the charm will not avail. Yet another is worked in the following manner: Pieces of green, red and white ribbon are purchased in three different shops, the name of the persons to be charmed being repeated, mentally, each time. The shopkeeper must be paid with the left hand, the ribbon being received in the right. When all the pieces are bought, they are taken to a witch, who sets out to find the person to be charmed. On finding him, or her, the witch mutters to herself, "With these ribbons I bind you to such a one." Then she returns the ribbons to the purchaser, who ties them beneath his or her left knee and wears them at church.—Macmillan's.

Great Man's Compliments.

While it is well known that Daniel Webster, in speaking of General Taylor's candidacy for the office of president, pronounced it "a nomination not fit to be made," he never failed to do justice to the general's military abilities and eminent service in the field.

On one occasion he paid the old soldier a delicate and well deserved compliment. General Taylor was complaining of the crowds of people who daily besieged him soon after his accession to the presidency.

"They interfere," he said, "with my official engagements and violate my domestic retirement; but still I do not wish to turn my back upon my friends."

"You never did upon your enemies, general," Mr. Webster instantly replied.

A compliment of another sort, and more surprising, considering its source, was one given by Mr. Webster, though the object of it was not present to hear. Some one was speaking of the remarkably beautiful eyes of a handsome woman, and one young enthusiast said, "They remind me of the dark eyelashes of artillery in ambuscade."

"They should rather be compared to heat lightning," said another.

"Not so," put in Mr. Webster, with a perfectly grave face, "for you must certainly be aware, my dear sir, that heat lightning never strikes."—Youth's Companion.

Usually.

"While I like to see a man who is not afraid to stand up for his rights," said the Cumminsville sage, "still, I have noticed that that sort of a man usually thinks he has a right to anything he wants."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Some Odd Wills.

One of the oddest documents of the will kind known was that of Queen Austriglida, consort of King Gontram, of Burgundy. The dying princess enjoined upon her husband to slay and bury in the same grave with her the physicians who had attended her. Another will was that of a husband who forbade his wife's marrying on pain of his returning to haunt her. This is quite different from that of a woman who instructed her executors to seek out "some nice, good, pretty girl" who would make an affectionate second wife to her spouse. It is a fact interesting in this connection that the first Napoleon actually bequeathed 10,000 francs to a fellow named Cantillon, who had been tried for attempting the assassination of the Duke of Wellington.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

THE FASHIONS.

"Feather, plush" garments are heralded by a noted New York firm.

Among the new autumn ribbons are fine and beautiful qualities in taffetas, gros grains, velvets, high-class fancies, satin plaids, Pompadour patterns, tricolored satin stripes on plain repped grounds and every width from the baby weave "No. 1" to ribbons from one-half to five-eighths of a yard.

New dress trimmings include beautiful sets, complete, that when adjusted look like elaborate braid-work; also stylish military sets—loops, frogs, fourragères, plastrons, Zouave and bolero jacket fronts in silk cord or beading or both; drooping woven blouse fronts, sleeve caps, collars of various stylish shapes, fringes, gimps, panels entire and panel ornaments, insertions, Vandykes, wide ceintures, narrow belts and girdles; passementeries in silk and mohair and many other novel devices for the adorning of gowns, waists and wraps.

Regarding plaided fabrics, they are always very much the fashion or else they are very much out of style. There appear to be no half measures regarding these gay tartans. The coming season they promise to be exceedingly popular for fancy waists, for skirts to be worn with the new silk or wool or silk and wool jerseys or jersey-like bodices formed of repped wool the shade of one of the leading colors in the richly plaided skirt. Kilted or laid in fine flat or box pleats they will be worn out of doors by young girls. They will likewise be used by older girls for bright gowns for home wear and also for children's suits and for lining jackets and capes. Besides any number of familiar clan tartans a firm of noted Broadway importers show among their very recent European stock of novelties handsome plaids called variously Kincardine, Abbotsford, Magda, Braemar, Angouleme, etc., these being but a few of the great variety of wholly new plaids imported.

Much of the millinery prepared for fashionable watering place wear this year consists of gay colored straw hats en suite, with a gayly colored costume—for instance, a gown worn at a celebrated summer resort is of pale pink linen, trimmed with lace insertion, both on skirt and open jacket. The hat is of light pink straw with a wreath of darker pink silk poppies around the crown, the flowers toned with dark brown velvet hearts. A bandeau of velvet is set under the brim. A costume of delicate mauve has a large round hat of mauve satin braid, trimmed with mauve tulle green velvet and a cluster of feather quills shading from mauve to white. A very pretty young girl from St. Louis wears a dress of soft, corn colored linen, braided in white, and en suite is a pale yellow Panama straw hat trimmed with pale blue velvet, yellow tulle, green satin hazel buds and one large purple orchid. This tones with a mauve satin sash, carried twice around a very slender waist, hooked at the left side in the back, the ends falling to the skirt hem. The so-called summer picture hat has, fortunately, proved impossible for the majority of people, and the graceful and artistic lines which proved so very ungraceful and inartistic when copied by amateurs and sold as "models" at a "sacrifice" appears now only upon the heads where they belong. Perhaps the very prettiest models worn anywhere this summer are the so-called shade hats, which sounds practical, but these are really most elaborate and dressy creations and prove very becoming to maid and matron alike. They are invariably large and most frequently of Leghorn and their charm consists of the deft, fascinating way in which their pliable brims are bent to suit each individual face and the great beauty of the flowers used in trimming.

The "Princess of Wales" is the name given to a brand-new, exceedingly smart, very close-rolling silk umbrella of various elegant shades that is almost too handsome, from its silk-tasselled handle to its silver stick tip, to do the duty for which it was designed. We should certainly reserve a "Princess of Wales" umbrella for possible light showers at fashionable garden parties, "English" picnics and water fetes at Newport, and keep the commonplace, practical Brother Jonathan models for every-day uses.

Among other models sent over as avant couriers of what is later to prevail in the domain of fashion are handsome polonaise costumes for the autumn and winter, showing very small sleeves, skirt slashed from hem to belt on each side of the front, close over the hips, full and expanding at the back, with very elegant accessories on the bodice part. Quite frequently the garment fastens on the left shoulder. The stylish redingote costumes open down the fronts, revealing petticoats and vests of the most expensive and elegant satin brocade or satin embossed silk in very beautiful Persian color-mixtures. Bits of this rich textile show as facings to the leaf points of the sleeves at the wrists and on the inside of the battlemented collars.

The latest importation of summer gowns contains some pretty satin foulards and soft-finished Liberty satins that can be worn late into the autumn. These show the unmistakable skilled handiwork of a noted French designer. Some of these are shot-twilled foulards, one handsome pattern in a gown changing from dark rose color to deep green, with a tiny stripe on the surface in pale gold satin. For trimming is used a very beautiful design in ecru guipure lace, laid over currant-red silk. There is a pleated ruche at the hem, formed of the foulard. The seven-gored skirt is almost sheath-like on the front and sides, but very full at the back, and is silk-lined, with plain dark-red taffeta, with only a five-inch interlining at the hem to support the ruche.

This autumn the revived Jersey will have a successful inning. These trim, neat, rather smart and decidedly comfortable garments are a boon to women for many reasons. The former objectionable features of these Jerseys are now removed by the addition of slight trimmings both on bodice and sleeves, and they are thus made no more outlining to the figure in their style than many of the closely adjusted dress-waists formed with cutlining darts and curving seams. While fitting the figure perfectly, they are the easiest garments imaginable to wear. A finely fitting waist can be selected in twenty minutes, with no trouble of standing by the hour at the dressmaker's, no choosing of linings, buttons, etc. The waist lies before you complete, and this year there are numberless colors, effects and styles to choose from. At a celebrated importing house are exhibited an entirely new invoice of the very prettiest and most graceful Jersey models ever manufactured. They show the approved diminutive sleeve-puffs, yoke or vest effects, strapped seams, braided bolero fronts, jacket-bodice fronts, double-breasted styles, buttoning from the left shoulder, box-pleated or Norfolk backs, etc. The price of these various garments is not more than one would pay the dressmaker for making a waist, and they will be found more than useful in the making of autumn costumes in black or colors for cycling, tennis, golf, yachting and traveling likewise, for they slip very easily under a traveling jacket or ulster, and they are far more comfortable for long journeys than any sort of boned bodice, and a degree at least more "dressy" than a shirt-waist.

This incident is related by a Portland lady, and she lays the scene in Waterville, whither she had gone from Vassalboro to do some shopping. Stopping into a little store kept by a woman she asked for a yard of "elastic." The shopkeeper looked and came back saying she had only a yard in the store and did not wish to sell it, for then she would be all out of it.

As a horse rounded a corner in Augusta, he beheld from the corner of his eye the form of a hippopotamus. Not being accustomed to the sight of a hippopotamus, the horse was seized with terror and started off, doubtless believing himself chased by the animal. His master got him under control, drove him back and after some little coaxing urged the horse right up to the thing that had caused the fright, to assure the poor horse that it was nothing more than a circus bill-board.

CITY AND VICINITY.

The wheelmen are now making their wheels into sort of moving harps by stretching rubber bands around the frame work. The vibrations of these bands when the wheel is in motion give a sound very similar to the sound of harp strings. They serve to warn the pedestrian fully as well as the regular bell, for the sound can be heard at some distance and the hearer, attracted by the peculiarity of it, is more prone to turn around.

"Whenever you see a flock of English sparrows flying together you will find if you notice carefully that there is one of our native birds in the middle of the flock and that it is being killed by them," says a careful observer of the birds and their habits. "They are not content, I find, with killing our native birds in the cities but now they are chasing them out along the stone walls of the farming sections and killing them. I found a little belated bluebird the other day with its eyes picked out and its head broken by those pesky little foreigners. But there's nothing to do about it that I can see."

Just now there is in the minds of some respectable people who essay to ride a wheel a burning question and, to be brief, it is this: "Does etiquette require a wheelman to lift his hat to a lady at the risk of losing his equilibrium, his confidence and almost his self respect? This query was impressed upon us by an accident which occurred the other day, says the Kennebec Journal. A man riding a bicycle on Grove street tried to lift his hat in recognition to a lady's bow. In doing so he lost his hat, his balance, his dignity and his sense of the ludicrous was so blunted that after throwing his arms about a friendly telegraph pole and sliding down until he sat on a heap made by his hat and wheel in the gutter, he tried to laugh in harmony with the laugh of the bystanders and failed, miserably failed. Should he persevere in lifting his hat and risking his life or risk a reputation for impoliteness?

Don't Appreciate the Cornet.

One cornet, one pair of armor-plated lungs belonging to a blonde lady Levy, several pairs of sensitive ears, a melancholy ground, a critical lawyer and East Fourteenth street, New York, are the component parts of a stew that is not particularly savory.

Mrs. Emma Shepherd possesses the cornet, also the lungs. Her neighbors have the ears. That is, all but two of the neighbors. They possess the dog. They like Mrs. Shepherd's cornet and lungs, so does the dog.

Mrs. Shepherd says she is an "artist." If practice goes for anything she ought to be, the folks around No. 211 East Fourteenth say. "Why, she toots away there from three in the morning until midnight. I can't guess when she sleeps," said one man with cotton in his ears.

"She may be famous as a cornetist—some day," was the comment made by H. Strassman, a lawyer, in a complaint made to the board of health a couple of days ago.

It is said "some day" hurt Mrs. Shepherd's feelings. She did not like the extension of time. So she extended her own line and played "The Rocky Road to Dublin" as a funeral march at 3 a. m., the neighbors say. They think she did it for revenge and are determined to press their complaint.

"Discords!" cried Mrs. Shepherd, when questioned by a reporter. "The idea! I have played in the best musical circles everywhere and have certificates from the leading conservatories. All the people in this house love my music."

"Yes," said Mrs. Probst and her actress daughters, who live in the flat below, "the music is beautiful. Even our dog loves it."

The folk across the way say the dog manifests his love by howling consecutive fifths to the cornet's tones.

The fight has not ended yet.

There is another feud further up town and of a different kind. There is a dog in it, of course—who ever heard of a neighborhood trouble without a dog—but the principal personage is a parrot. Polly belonged to Henry Pelffer, of Pinton avenue. The Klawapches, next door, didn't like Pelffer. He retaliated by teaching the parrot to swear volubly, and putting it on his fence when Mrs. Klawapche was hanging out clothes.

Klawapche called in the police, and Pelffer had to give away his parrot. He tried to get revenge by swearing that Klawapche had a ferocious beast in his yard. The ferocious beast turned out to be a St. Bernard pup not vigorous enough to walk.

And Pelffer's second attempt at revenge has failed. But never mind—a day will come!

Strong efforts are being made to remove even the pretty little puffs and frills from the tops of dress sleeves, leaving them wholly plain. This is not likely to happen any more than is the return of the one button glove or the tabooed hoopskirt. There are still a few things which even the ultra-fashionable new woman has ceased to tolerate.

General Secretary R. A. Jordan, of the Bangor Y. M. C. A., spoke at the men's meeting at the Portland Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon.

The Electrical Engineer has an interesting article concerning the submarine sounder for vessels invented by Dr. J. F. Babcock, of this city.

Mr. Oscar A. Fickett has just completed a new double tenement house on Cottage street and has added to its conveniences by fitting it out with thirty of G. W. Spratt's famous fly screens.

There was little new yesterday regarding the team stolen from the barn of Mr. Sanford C. Smith on Saturday night. The police received information from Dixmont and Troy regarding teams being seen there which answered the description somewhat but no definite clues were found.

Court Dirigo, I. O. F., have changed their place of meeting from A. O. U. W. hall to Fraternal Union hall, over J. C. White's store. The order is in a flourishing condition, new members being received at every meeting. The members are considering the matter of an excursion to Kineo.

State Steamboat Inspector Horace Atwood, of Hampden, left yesterday on the afternoon train for Houlton to inspect a steamer at that place, with Inspector Charles Staples, Jr., of Portland. Tomorrow they will go to Ashland for the purpose of steamboat inspection. They are having a busy year.

Just before the slight shower, which was, however, accompanied by considerable sharp lightning and thunder, began here last evening, residents of West Bangor saw a fire on the Green Point road, several miles back of Brewer. It was probably some house or barn which had been struck by lightning.

There are five large, iron steamers at High Head at the present time. Two are being loaded with spool wood by T. J. Stewart & Co., one is being discharged of a cargo of coal for the Maine Central, another a cargo of coal for the Stickney & Babcock Coal Co., and the fifth is discharging oil for Henry McLaughlin.

Quite a number of the members of the Eight Maine regiment were in Bangor on Monday on their way to Peak's Island to attend the annual reunion. Among them were L. B. Rogers, of Patten and wife; O. Cushman, C. A. Robinson and C. S. Cushman, of Sherman. Mrs. B. F. Emery, of Sherman, will join her husband in Portland and attend the reunion.

There was a dance at Lakeview Hotel, Pushaw, Saturday evening and it was well attended. Music was furnished by George H. Perry, of the Oldtown Band. Many drove out to the landing Sunday. Good boats can be obtained at the wharf at all hours. The hotel dining room is well patronized, and special fish dinners are served. Many buckboard parties call at this resort.

Miss Florence Dressler, the actress, who has been enjoying her vacation at the Fort Point hotel, came to Bangor Monday morning. Miss Dressler has been engaged by E. E. Rice, the well known theatrical manager, for his production of "A French Maid." Miss Dressler two seasons ago played a prominent part in "Lady Slavey," in which Marie Dressler made a pronounced success.

The August criminal term of the Supreme Judicial Court will convene today at 10 a. m. Judge L. A. Emery, of Ellsworth, will preside. County Attorney B. L. Smith, of Patten, arrived in the city yesterday in readiness for the opening of the term. There are quite a large number of cases on the docket. The grand jury will commence its session today and will probably not report until the last of this week or the first of next.

W. C. Bryant, the enterprising jeweler, who is famous for his many unique and happy ideas in business and who is a successful designer, has made some very handsome gold pins for the three principal officers of the Niben Club, the design being his own, and presented them to the officers. The center of the pin is in the shape of a bicycle wheel, with a wing on each side. Suspended are the letters "N. C." in monogram. It is very artistic and is intended for being worn on the cap or lapel of the coat.

The event of last week at Squirrel Island was the first dramatic entertainment of the summer on Friday evening, two plays, "Sweethearts" and "Aunt Charlotte's Maid," being given with great success. Mr. F. A. Owen, manager of the Bangor Opera House, participated in both, with customary excellence. Mr. Alexander Doyle, the New York sculptor, who is making a model of Hannibal Hamlin for Bangor, was a member of the cast in the latter play. Every one there knows what to expect when they see the names of Mrs. F. A. Owen and Mrs. C. W. Mertell on the committee, and Mr. Owen and Miss Mertell in the cast. It was the first time Mrs. William P. Frye's name had appeared in amateur theatricals and her appearance was received with much interest.

About 130 from Maine will attend the annual national encampment of the G. A. R., to be held at Buffalo. The Maine Central railroad tickets will be good for return until Sept. 20. It was originally agreed that they should be limited to August 31, but, by request, the road extended the date. This will give those who want to make a few weeks' visit in Buffalo a chance to do so without having to pay regular rates home. The party will leave Portland, Saturday, August 21. A train will start from Dover at 4 a. m., to connect with the train that leaves Waterville, reaching Augusta at 6.30. This connects with the train of six Pullmans that will leave Portland. The stops for meals will be made at Fabyan's, Montreal, Toronto and Niagara Falls. The excursionists will have from 8 a. m. to 5.30 p. m. at that place, Sunday, giving them a chance to see the sights. The hotel accommodations at Buffalo are all taken. Some engaged their rooms a year ahead of time for the event. The only encampment ever held in Maine was in 1885 at Portland. President McKinley will be at the encampment August 24 and 25. A banquet will be given in his honor on the evening of the 25th.

The Country Club.

If the weather is favorable the Niben Club will have the run up the bicycle path at 4.30 this afternoon and those who drive will meet the bicyclers at the resting house in time for lunch at 5.30. The band will play until 9. A large party will go out.

A TERRIFIC STORM.

Barns and Telegraph Poles Blown Down—Heavy Rain Fall.

A terrific thunder storm passed over this section of the State last evening, Bangor fortunately escaping with only a little rain. Great black clouds passed over here and the display of lightning was vivid and interesting—at a safe distance.

Some places not far distant from here felt the effects of the storm, however, West Oldtown, in particular, getting its full share. There a terrific wind blew, lightning flashed and thunder roared, while the rain came down hard. A number of barns were blown down, also telegraph and telephone poles, with other minor damage. Probably other places in that section also suffered.

Here rain fell heavily for a short time and later in the evening the heavens cleared and the moon shone out.

ON TO BAR HARBOR.

Low Rates Offered by Maine Central Railroad.

The Maine Central offers one fare rates to Bar Harbor and return today, tickets to be good on any train and for a return on Wednesday. Tomorrow excursion rates of $1 for the round trip will be offered. A large number of people will undoubtedly take advantage of both these opportunities to visit Maine's great resort. A big attraction there at present is the New York Yacht Club which has made a run to Bar Harbor. There is one of the greatest gatherings of yachts ever seen in America. The grand illumination of yachts to have taken place last night was postponed to tonight and it will be a beautiful spectacle. Wednesday the yacht races will occur and elaborate plans have been made for the event which will be one of the finest sights ever presented in eastern waters.

But the great opportunity offered the public by the Maine Central comes tonight, when a special train leaving Bangor at 6 o'clock will take all to Bar Harbor who wish to see the grand display of fireworks and the illumination of the yacht fleet. It will be a glorious spectacle, the like of which has not been witnessed in this section for a long time.

We were shown last evening by Mr. A. W. Benton a finely gotten up programme for the display tonight, which opens with a salute of 21 aerial maroons fired from mortars.

The harbor will be illuminated with 150 colored lights, changing color four times. We haven't space to enumerate all the features, which will be magnificent.

The special train will return here after the illumination.

Well Known American Lady.

The Saratoga Daily Eagle of Aug. 5 has the following notice regarding a Bangor lady, a graduate of our high school:

Saratoga is constantly entertaining men prominent in public life, either in the political arena or prominent in the fields of literature, science or art, but seldom does the village have the honor of entertaining such a bright and distinguished literary star, such a woman of public prominence as Miss Frances Graham French, of Washington, D. C., who is one of the present guests at the Vermont House on Grove street.

Miss French is a member of the Women's National Press Association, which has a number of members in Saratoga, is a Daughter of the Revolution, and, like Speaker Reed, is one of the citizens her native state, Maine, is proud to claim, her former home having been in Bangor. Miss French is connected with the Bureau of Education at Washington, being a specialist in the school systems of northern and eastern Europe. In September, '95, she was chosen by President Cleveland as a delegate on the part of the United States of America to attend the Second International Congress of Charities and the Second International Congress for the Protection of Children to convene at Geneva, Switzerland, from September 15 to 19.

The other delegate from this country was Mrs. Belva Lockwood. At this congress over sixty countries were represented, the only other woman in the whole body of delegates being Mme. Kergomard, representing the French ministry of public instruction. This was a new innovation and a great distinction for the women of America who are constantly improving the lead they have on all the other countries in the advancement of their sex in public affairs. These ladies won much distinction both for themselves and the country they represented. Miss French's paper written and delivered by her in French, was entitled "Abandoned Children in the United States," and has been widely printed and circulated throughout Europe.

From this congress Miss French journeyed to Berlin, Germany, where as a delegate from the Women's National Press Association she attended the International Congress of Women from September 19 to 26. Here she delivered a very able paper in Germany on "Advancement of Women in the United States."

Miss French was sent to the Atlanta exposition to report on several important matters for the government connected with the industries of the south and also represented while there the Women's National Press Association and read a most brilliant paper on "Women in Modern European Literature."

Miss French will remain several weeks in Saratoga at the delightful Vermont House. In October she will attend the big gathering of the Women's National Press Association in Nashville, Tenn., and deliver a paper on "Woman's Industries in Different Countries."

Excursion on Thursday.

As will be seen by our advertising columns there will be an excursion to Northport and Camden on Thursday, August 12th. The steamer Sedgwick will leave Bangor at 7.30 a. m. for these places. On the arrival of steamer at Camden carriages will be waiting to convey excursionists over some of the most beautiful drives in the world, the Turnpike drive to Lake City and Mt. Megunticook, or to the Summit House on Mt. Beatty. Arrangements have been made to sell tickets at the boat to include the sail and the drive. Those wishing to take the drive should purchase tickets at the boat, so that enough carriages can be telephoned for. The steamer will leave Camden on the return at 3.30 p. m. and Northport at 4.30.

"Mr. Bean From Boston."

Mr. James P. Forrest leaves on Thursday to again act as advance agent for the Gormans. Mr. Forrest first goes to New York where the Gormans are now rehearsing their new play "Mr. Bean From Boston" and then starts out on the road to prepare the people for the coming of the company which will first go West as far as Iowa. It will then return East.

"Mr. Bean from Boston" will be presented in Bangor at the Opera House on November 20th and will doubtless be received with the favor and pleasure which has always marked the appearance of the Gormans here. The play is an eccentric musical comedy and it will be presented by a strong company.

Red Letter Day.

Our St. Albans correspondent writes: Saturday was a red letter day for the G. A. R. boys, when the George Goodwin Post, of St. Albans, E. A. Parkman, commander, held a grove meeting and picnic in Foss' grove. Comrades were present from Ripley, Dexter, Corinna and Newport, and a programme of exercises was carried out successfully. The forenoon was passed in gathering together, getting acquainted and preparing for dinner. At the appointed time the lunch baskets were brought on the grounds and the hot coffee under the charge of Caterer Brown, of Ripley was distributed; the table cloths spread on the ground and the inner man was soon satisfied with the contents of the baskets. Commander Parkman and wife were busy looking after those who were not provided for.

After dinner the commander called the assembly to order and called for music and several war and other patriotic songs were sung, Mrs. Dr. Weeks presiding at the organ with her usual ability. Mrs. Weeks is a musician of rare ability, both vocal and instrumental, and her music was highly appreciated by those present. Commander Parkman then introduced the first speaker, Comrade T. D. Farrar, of Dexter, who made some very interesting remarks for the occasion. The next speaker the commander introduced was Col. Stanley Plummer, of Dexter, whose ability as a public speaker is well known and although not a soldier, not being old enough to enter the service in '61, he gave a patriotic and stirring address, eulogizing the G. A. R. boys for bravely defending the Old Flag and restoring to us a united country.

At the close of his speech the Colonel was warmly applauded, and other enthusiastic remarks were made by Comrades I. D. Natter, of Dexter Post, and Flynt, of Dexter, Brooks, of Newport, and others, all showing that the spark that kindled the patriotic fire of '61 had not gone out.

After more music and singing, several recitations were given by the little folks, which were well received and after a vote of thanks and three cheers for St. Albans Post and their hospitality the exercises closed, all feeling that the day had been well spent.

Northport Notes.

There was a large crowd at Northport over Sunday, there being in addition to those spending the season there the usual number from here to spend the Sabbath and several hundred people that the excursion steamers brought. At the hotel there were 120 people at dinner. The weather was beautiful and it was one of the most enjoyable Sundays of the season at this popular resort.

The specialty entertainment concluding with a farce which was given at the auditorium Wednesday evening under the management of Mr. Harry Carleton, was a great success. The large building was filled with the audience that gathered and the entire programme was much enjoyed. The entertainment was given again Friday evening at Searsport with the same success.

The hotel is well filled with guests and there are new arrivals daily. Almost every cottage on the grounds is now occupied and the season is at its height.

Saturday evening there was a hop at the hotel, the excellent floor of the dining hall and the office being used for the dancing, and it was much enjoyed by a large number of the young people.

The following are among the more recent arrivals at the hotel: Frank E. Hutchinson, Harry S. Dean, Hon. E. H. Blake, E. J. Emery, R. H. Elmer, F. W. Hopkins, Mrs. G. F. BURNED TO DEATH.

A Shocking Fatality at Foxcroft.

Mrs. Irene Douglass, a widow, of Foxcroft, who resides with her son Frank at Norton Hill, lost her life Sunday in a fire that caught from a shaft of lightning. A heavy thunder storm was in progress in the afternoon and the barn was struck. She rushed to the building and released one horse and is supposed to have started back to release another.

When the neighbors got to the scene of the blaze her body could be seen surrounded by flames. Rescue was out of question and the horrified neighbors watched the progress of the flames until the floor gave way and the remains dropped down into the cellar. The charred bones were found after the fire. Mrs. Douglass was suffocated by the smoke and could not get out of the building.

Mrs. Douglass was 56 years old and a much respected woman. Her husband died 23 years ago.

A horse, pig and calf were also burned.

TAKEN IN TIME, even consumption yields to the wonderful effects of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It won't make new lungs—but it will make diseased ones healthy when nothing else will. There's reason for it, too. Consumption is lung-scrofula. For every form of scrofula, and all blood-taints, the "Discovery" is a positive cure. It's the most potent health-restorer, blood-cleanser, and flesh-builder known to medical science. For weak lungs, spitting of blood, bronchitis, asthma, catarrh, and all lingering coughs, it's an unequaled remedy.

BROWN UNIVERSITY CASE.

Dean Wayland Interjects Calm Sensible Talk Into This Now Famous Discussion.

Providence, R. I., Aug. 9. Following is an abstract, from a lengthy communication to members of the faculty of Brown University from Dean H. L. Wayland.

After referring to the many exaggerated stories afloat he says:

"The real questions involved are, I think, threefold:

"First—Has an instructor, a minister, an editor, the president of a bank or a college, a right to use his position to give currency and authority to his views without being open to suggestion from those who have placed him in his position and who have afforded him the opportunity of making his views widely known and of clothing them with influence?

"I regret that the President by his resignation seems to say: 'I regard my views as of such importance that no consideration can induce me to forbear the expression of them, and my independence would be violated if I should listen to any suggestion or advice from those whom the charter constitutes my counsellors.'

"It is stated that Dr. Andrews is to engage in an educational enterprise to be endowed and controlled by Mr. J. B. Walker. If it should chance in the future that the views of Dr. Andrews should diverge from those of Mr. Walker, will Mr. Walker entertain the opinion which the President now cherishes as to independence?

"Second—was the occasion such as to justify the request of the corporation? The question at issue is: Shall the government coin an unlimited quantity of silver dollars containing, at the present rate, 43 cents worth of silver and perpetually falling, and make them legal tender for all debts, public and private, including the principal and interest of national and state bonds?

"The chief justice of the Hawaiian islands recently said: 'When the advocates of free silver coinage in the islands were told that the weight of intelligence and the integrity of the American people is against their views, they never fail to reply: "Is not Brown University an institution of high standing? Its president is with us."'

"Three—There was nothing but the most cordial feeling toward the president and the suggestion that he was 'forced' out is groundless."

Englishman Won.

London, Aug. 9. At Stamford bridge today the second race between Kilpatrick, American champion runner, and Bredin, English champion, was run.

One account of the race says that at the sound of the pistol Kilpatrick shot away at a rare pace, Bredin passing an instant at the line and then following in his opponent's wake. The American increased his lead at every stride and before 250 yards were passed was quite five yards ahead. At 350 yards he looked round.

Almost immediately after Bredin began to diminish the gap. At the half distance post Kilpatrick was only three yards ahead. Then they ran at this interval for some time, but Kilpatrick gradually fell back on his opponent.

About forty yards from the tape there was a grand tussle. Kilpatrick set his teeth for a game effort but Bredin finished with a phenomenal rush, his victory being greeted with deafening cheers. Kilpatrick also had an ovation.

The latter weighed in at 152½ pounds and Bredin at 140 pounds. The falling off in both cases was due to the heat. Kilpatrick won the toss and chose the inside.

MR. DEPEW'S EXACTING TASK

Obliged to Sign His Name 10,000 Times to the Central's Bonds.

Some time ago the stockholders of the New York Central railroad decided to refund $100,000,000 of outstanding bonds at 3½ per cent. This decision has led to a neat little mathematical problem. The new bonds, which are a masterpiece of the engraver's art, were received at the offices of the New York Central last week. They have a photo-engraving of Cornelius Vanderbilt, and a picture of No. 999, the famous flyer engine of the railroad. They are a dark green in color and are exceptionally handsome. The bonds are each for $1,000 with coupons running for one hundred years. When the enormous pile was stacked up on his desk he began to figure how long it would take him to go through with the bundle. His deduction is interesting. He decided that he would have time enough to sign five hundred bonds a day and allotted that task to himself.

Here is his problem worked out: One hundred million dollars in bonds of one thousand dollars each gives one hundred thousand bonds to be signed. By signing five hundred a day it will take two hundred days to get through the task. Taking twenty-five working days in the month it will be seen that it will take Mr. Depew just eight months to get through the list. Mr. Depew has signed his name to thousands upon thousands of official documents but this is perhaps the largest single job he ever undertook. He said, laughingly, as he surveyed the pile: "I guess I'll know how to write my name blindfolded when I get through with this job."

While affixing his signature to the paper Mr. Depew talked business with any one who called. He has come to write his name automatically, and his attention is not diverted for an instant from the conversation he is carrying on by his writing. A clerk stands by the desk as he signs the bonds and materially assists in the work. He carefully lays the bond down in front of Mr. Depew, with the proper place for the signature at hand, and then when the paper is signed picks it up and substitutes another. While this other is being signed he is blotting the signature just written and preparing the next bond. Mr. Depew can sign five hundred bonds in about two hours. He says that he may increase his list a thousand or even fifteen hundred a day, but for the present he means to jog along at the rate named.

MATTHEW FITZPATRICK'S AGE.

He Refuses to Tell It, but His Daughter Says He Is More Than 100 Years Old.

Concerning his age, Matthew Fitzpatrick, of Jersey City, is silent, but his daughter, Mrs. Bonan, a good natured woman of 34, who weighs 200 pounds, says he must be over 100 years old.

"My father," she said, "won't confess his age even to us, but we are sure he has passed the century mark. Do you remember when Jimmy McCabe was hanged up in Carbondale ten years ago? You don't? Well, I've often heard father say that he was five years older than Jimmy's father and old Mr. McCabe was 90 when he died. That would make father 105 now.

"Father came to this country from the county Cavan, Ireland, before he was twenty years old. His brother, Charles, was a physician in New York. He wanted father to study medicine but father studied dentistry instead. I don't know exactly how long ago that was but I've often heard him say that he used to go in swimming in Kip's bay, at Second avenue and Thirty-ninth street, when that part of the town was away up in the woods and the East river was full of sharks.

"When he was a young man he moved into Pennsylvania and took a farm near Carbondale, where he lived until last week, when I brought him to Jersey City to spend the rest of his days with me.

"Father's whole family was long lived. Uncle Charles died seventeen years ago at the age of 112. Uncle John, another brother of father's was more than 90 years old when he died. Uncle Dan died twelve years ago at the age of 80, and Uncle James, who was older than father, went to Florida a couple of years ago for his health. We haven't heard anything of him since. Then there was father's only sister, Ellen, who lived with him for many years. She died eight years ago at the age of 109. So you see we have every reason to believe that father is over 100 years old."

Mrs. Bonan says that while her father's mind is as clear as ever, he has begun to fall off physically.

"Two years ago he was twice as big as he is now," she said, "and he could climb the mountains around our old home in Pennsylvania as well as any man of 30."

Lightning Saves a Baby.

Lightning and blackberries come together in the coast region of Texas. The people there, as a rule, are more partial to the latter than the former. One exception to the rule exists there today, however, in Mrs. Pennington, of Plum Creek, who says that one timely stroke of the lightning has done her more good than all the blackberries in creation could possibly accomplish, says a correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Just behind the Pennington home is a small clearing in which the blackberries grow large and sweet and in abundance. One day Mrs. Pennington went there to pick some berries for supper, and took her little baby girl with her. The baby grew tired in a while, and the mother arranged a bed of dry leaves for it under a sheltering sumach, bush. In a few minutes the child was asleep, and the mother resumed her berry-picking. It was an oppressively hot day when the air was full of electricity and not a breath of wind stirring anywhere. A squall was coming up rapidly from the east, the lightning was showing dimly on its upper edge, but Mrs. Pennington was apparently oblivious of the approach of the storm, glad only that the baby slept so well and gave her so little trouble. But it was not the storm alone that threatened danger. At the very edge of the thicket and only a few feet from the sleeping baby, its eyes gleaming, its head laid flat on the ground, and its tail lashing its tawny sides, a huge Mexican lion was crouching ready to spring. For a moment it dug its hind paws nervously into the ground, and then it leaped into the air. It fell dead only a few inches from the sleeping baby, just as a loud peal of thunder caused Mrs. Pennington to look around for the safety of the child. The baby awoke, looked up and smiled.

A Question of Education.

I was sitting on a keg of nails in a West Virginia mountain store watching a native dickering with the merchant over a trade of a basket of eggs for a calico dress. After some time a bargain was closed, the native walked out with the dress in a bundle under his arm, and I followed him.

"It isn't any business of mine," I said, "but I was watching that trade, and was surprised to see you let the eggs go for the dress."

"What fer?" he asked in astonishment, as he mounted his horse.

"How many eggs did you have?"

"Basket full."

"How many dozen?"

"Dunno. Can't count."

"That's where you miss the advantage of education. With knowledge you might have got two dresses for those eggs."

"But I don't want two dresses, mister," he argued.

"Perhaps not but that was no reason why you should have paid two prices for one. The merchant got the advantage of you because of his education. He knew what he was about."

He looked at me for a minute as if he felt real sorry for me. Then he grinned and pulled his horse over close to me.

"I reckon," he half whispered, casting furtive glances toward the store, "his education ain't so much more'n mine ez you think it is. He don't know how many uv them aigs is spiled, an' I do," and he rode away before I could argue further.—Boston Herald.

TIRED, NERVOUS, SLEEPLESS, Men and women—how gratefully they write about Hood's Sarsaparilla. Once helpless and discouraged, having lost all faith in medicines, now in good health and "able to do my own work," because Hood's Sarsaparilla has power to enrich and purify the blood and make the weak strong—this is experience of a host of people.

Hood's Pills are the best family cathartic and liver medicine. Gentle, reliable, sure.
